

Saddlers' Hall
Gutter Lane, London, EC2V 6BR

In the heart of the City of London, a few yards from St Paul's Cathedral, off an ancient bye way, stands the magnificent mansion house of the Worshipful Company of Saddlers, in a position it has occupied for over 600 years

The Company is proud of its heritage and to this day remains a "working" company. Alongside its broad charitable, educational and training aims it retains a close involvement with the British saddlery trade. The Company also supports all aspects of British equestrianism and awards prizes for a wide range of competitions, to encourage good young British riders to use good British saddlery.

The superbly elegant Great Hall features a musicians' gallery, silver display case and portraits of Past Masters of the Company. The Great Hall is well equipped with audio – visual equipment.

The Hall is a flexible venue suited for many events.

The Livery Room, Court Room and Wardens Room are suitable for meetings, presentations, document signings, lunches, dinners and product launches. The Tunnel Room has a fascinating collection of both ancient and modern saddlery.
