

Hoopers Gallery

15 Clerkenwell Close, London, EC1R 0AA

The opening of Hoopers Gallery in November 2003 was the culmination of a long held ambition by owner and wildlife photographer Roger Hooper.

The aim being to provide a showcase for emerging photographic artists as well as established ones.

The main exhibition area, at nearly 1000 square feet, is one of the largest in central London.

Providing substantial space to exhibit the most ambitious of contemporary photographic prints, coupled with a smaller (600 sq.ft.) lower gallery, usually displaying a selection of work by represented artists.

The choice of represented photographers reflects the gallery's commitment to innovative talent and support for recognised modern masters.

Showing the best in Fine Art, Wild Life and Celebrity photography Hoopers Gallery makes an exceptional venue for receptions, dinners, lectures and seminars.

It is light and contemporary in feel, close to the city and in one of London's most charming and historic areas.
